

Watch Your Feet

It's plain and simple—painted right on top of the vehicle's air intake tube—NO STEP.

The tube looks solid, but it cracks when a boot bears down on it. Once it cracks open, the damage begins—dirt, dust and crud get sucked into the engine.

Air Cleaner Housing

The same goes for the HMMWV's air cleaner housing—don't step on it. Your weight will bend or crack the housing where it mounts into the precleaner. You won't get a good seal on the cap and extra dirt and dust hit the air cleaner, plugging it up.

Stay off the Hood

Finally, never step on the HMMWV's hood. It's made of fiberglass, and will crack under your weight. Your vehicle will soon be heading back to the shop for repair.
